

Robert Latham is a Fellow of Magdalene College, Cambridge, where, as Pepys Librarian until 1982, he had charge of the remarkable collection of books, prints and manuscripts – including the manuscript of the Diary itself – which Pepys left to his old college. He has devoted the greater part of the past thirty years to the study of the diary and, in addition to his work on the eleven volume edition, is the editor of The Illustrated Pepys.

From Reviews of The Diary of Samuel Pepys

“One of the most important literary achievements of the century.” Stewart McBride, Christian Science Monitor.

“Seldom has such learning been so economically and so elegantly presented.” Hugh Trevor-Roper, Listener.

“One of the finest feasts in all the long history of scholarship.” Bernard Levin, The Observer.

“A triumph of modern scholarship.” C.P. Snow, Financial Times.

“A monumental scholarly effort.” Robert Taylor, Boston Globe.

“Pepys’s diary is the cheerful self-report, not of the man eminent in naval history, nor of the historical witness, but of the unobjectionable hedonist.” Geoffrey Grigson, The Guardian.

“One of the most widely and justly applauded scholarly enterprises of our times.” Richard Ollard, Financial Times.
